

Scent to Remember

North Shore Hospice has created its own unique rose to help raise funds and give people with a new way to remember and honour loved ones.

'Hospice Scent to Remember' is a beautiful bush rose that has been specially bred for Hospice by award winning breeder Rob Somerfield, the winner of many national and international awards.

The rose is ideal for picking and creates a magnificent display with fragrant peach coloured blooms which produce prolific flowers over an extended period from mid November until pruning time in June

"The 'Scent to Remember' would make a wonderful gift for someone special, as well as being a great addition to your garden," says Gaynor Larsen, Funding Development Manager at North Shore Hospice. "These stunning roses will look great in any garden. My Mum was thrilled to receive a 'Scent to Remember', which I have just given her for her 90th birthday. It is a great way to support North Shore Hospice"

You can purchase a 'Scent to Remember' for just $30, and by buying one you will not only have a lasting memorial for a loved one, you will also be helping Hospice. ◀
